Coronavirus update: New contactless services to help keep you safe. Very Quick Contact was interested but got a used car from friend with less than 30k miles forway less that market value. I loved every aspect of buying a car from Mick at 4M! He was kind, considerate and honest. We drove all the way from Nashville to Alabama for this vehicle. I love my new car and he will get our repeat business. I decided to buy another car. They were courteous and informative about all vehicles I asked about. Recommend highly. Sales contacted me within hours and kept me up to date on situation. Overall experience was good. Just wish they would have been a little qiucker in pricing as they sold car while we were negoiating. They explained existing issues and offered a great deal. Professional staff that made the experience very comfortable. Obvious that they do a diagnostic check on their vehicles and remain transparent during the buying process. Called ahead to ask for pics of main seal for oil leaks. Was sent great pics and told no leaks. Drove 90 mins one way. Wasted 4 hours. I was thinking it would take a day or so The staff was very friendly, will definitely go back when I want to buy another car. Called Mark about Mustang said he had somebody there now buying it. Called and asked what happened. Working with David was an awesome experience! His prices are very fair, all his vehicles are very nice! Best experience I've ever had purchasing a car! So far, the experience has just been communication, but David Motor was quick and enthusiastic and helpful in their response. David's Motor Co. David is professional, personable, friendly, and accommodating. He cares about his customers. We saw a posting and called him right away and he scheduled an appointment after hours due to our working schedule. We were able to take it for test drive and we did the paperwork immediately afterwards. By far the best experience we had had in 30 years as consumers. From communication with our initial interest through to the sale of the vehicle, Matt at Platte River Auto was just superb. He was very upfront and honest, and went out of his way to accommodate us! It was mostly through emails but very professional. Very courteous and everything went smoothly. Listing was accurate enough. If you want more details than what is offered on Listing than you gotta call and ask. Quick to respond. My impression is I felt like I've got what I was seeking and they delivered. Get the V8, and be pleased that you can lug around pretty much anything you can attach to the rear bumper in great comfort and relative luxury, especially at its price. With rumors of a transition to a unibody design in the future, perhaps as early as , the Explorer might just serve as both the debut and swan song of the practical midsize SUV. Almost unchanged since , the Explorer comes in XLT, Limited, and Eddie Bauer trims, with the option of rear-wheel drive, all-wheel drive, or full-time four-wheel drive, two engines, and a seating capacity of seven. The Explorer gets power from a hp, 4. Both engines provide quite a bit of power, with the V8 able to make the scoot in less than 7. The transmissions are smooth regardless of driving conditions, although some reviewers have noticed a bit of delay in full-throttle downshifting with the six-speed. Despite bad press in recent years, the Explorer has always been lauded as one of the best handling and riding SUVs out there. Not even a crossover, an actual SUV. That said, the Explorer handles very nicely, helped considerably by an independent rear suspension as well as stability and traction control. Steering and handling are both responsive, and pedal feel is robust. Big news for is the addition of Trailer Sway Control, which detects and corrects sway in the trailer by way of automatic braking and torque adjustments. The interior is undeniably the weak point of the Explorer. Many complaints have come in regarding ergonomics and the controls of the vehicle, including a shift lever that hinders reaching the climate controls, an awkward turn lever, and out-of-reach audio controls. Indeed, even the door handles have been hit with complaints, which is a shame considering that otherwise, the interior is well-constructed with mostly pleasant materials and quite comfortable. While a bit of a step to enter, once inside the Explorer offers plenty of room for both heads and legs in all three rows, although the third row lacks a bit of the comfort of the first two. Also available are a luxury package for the upgraded audio system as well as heated seats and mirrors. A myriad of safety features including ABS, traction and stability control, anti-skid, and front and curtain airbags come on the Explorer, as well as the new-for Trailer Sway Control. NHTSA ratings have come in at five stars across the board, with the exception of rollover resistance, which garnered a three-star rating. Great suspension, towing capability, safety features, drivetrain, and overall comfort have been extremely strong points of the model since its inception and continue while the Explorer endures as one of the last true midsize SUVs.
