Tundra led drl

Plug n Play: It's a seamless solution to keep your low and high beams under control on the new OEM projector lights using the original controls inside the cabin. The outputs will plug directly into the multi-pin connector on the back of each headlight from Toyota, and the inputs straight from your truck. This harness keeps the low beams on when you go to high beams as well! It just needs hooked up with a switched power source such as the fuse box and then you're good to go too. DRL's will always been on at full intensity with this harness. LED Heads: If you're buying this harness, then you're obviously buying the headlights too. Trusted: For more than a decade, we've worked hard to earn our killer reputation. Car guys world-wide know that TRS carries the internet's best selection of high performance automotive and powersport lighting products at the best prices, and we've got the best, most knowledgeable team of real enthusiasts to help back it up. If we sell it, then you bet we've put it to the test on our own cars, trucks, and bikes. Need a recommendation on parts for your project? Got a tech question? Wholesale inquiry? Contact Us. Hardest part was reversing the polarity on the turn signal connectors and even that was easy once I popped the white piece off and depressed the catch with a small screw driver. This conversion took no longer than replacing bulbs in this vehicle. Thanks so much for making it so easy to upgrade my headlights!!! Javascript is disabled on your browser. If so, forgive my ignorance, but do relays pretty much just pull out with a set of pliers, and I can just buy a replacement at an auto parts store? Any way to diagnose a relay before replacing it? Thanks in advance with any comments! DarthMurdicide , Jul 16, I believe they are designed that way - the DRL goes dim when the headlights are on to minimize blinding the oncoming traffic. Makov , Jul 16, Pretty sure they stay the same level of brightness whether the headlights are on or off. Last edited: Jul 16, Im sure iHacker can pitch in and share some knowledge. They should definitely be ON during the day with the switch in the Auto position. There is something wrong with the wiring, the switch, the fuse, or the relay. TXTundra , Jul 16, Will report back this weekend. DarthMurdicide , Jul 17, JeremyGSU , Jul 17, You have AUTO headlights? Shouldn't this be under warranty if you have a ?? Id let the dealer mess with it before you start throwing parts at it. HappyGilmore , Jul 17, Medic and Blueknights75 like this. This LED has multiple functions: brilliant amber as DRL, extremely bright white when headlamps are turned on, and flash amber when the turn signal is engaged. It will add a distinct, unique look to your vehicle both day and night! High output, clean appearance. With our proprietary high-density "HDLED" technology, these custom-designed LED modules are populated with a high number of LED chips, which are then coated by a diffusing gel, resulting in a perfectly uniform light when turned on. Pure white color. And because they use modern high-power amber chips, rather than traditional LEDs, the amber is even brighter than the white! Constant-current power. To power the modules efficiently, your order includes two custom-designed drivers, which feature transient voltage suppression, reverse protection, and a switching driver for extremely high reliability over time. Finally, the amber is run at even higher power, making the turn signal easily visible in broad daylight! Professional installation is strongly recommended, as the factory headlights must be opened for installation. The halos must be custom-mounted in position using adhesive or beading wire. We pride ourselves in offering only quality LED products, that will exceed your expectations. Please contact us if you'd like to discuss your lighting project! Find an error on this page? Please let us know! Installation Guide: Click to download. Wire Colors: To make these boards work with factory lighting functions on the Tundra Standard, we recommend tapping to the following wires. If you experience any defect with a product, we will do some quick troubleshooting, and if necessary, provide a replacement. There is no need to wait for a return and repair process.
